SPIRITUAL SIDE HAS NO CHANCE NOW-IS CLAIM

Sermon Calls for More Exercise of Prayer Book and Church.

By THE REV. MEADE BOLTON, Grace Episcopal Church. Exercise Thyself Unto Godliness. First Timothy 4:7.

If there is one thing that is recognized as an essential element in all development it is the necessity of exercise. It is generally looked upon as a most necessary quality in the expression of all physical and mental growth.

The modern parent insist upon the growing child having its hours of out-of-doors play. The school boy and girl is encouraged in all the participation of outdoor sports. The young man at college enters into the athletic contests as a matter of course. He becomes proficient in rowing and develops the strong muscles in his arms. He swims and the muscles of his legs become hard. He frequents the gymnasium and by the use of the appliances there develops a good broad chest. He is laying the foundation for a well-developed, well-rounded physical being. Men and women of all classes and conditions have awakened to the necessity of physical exercise if there is to be physical development and growth.

There has been a like awakening when it comes to mental development and growth. The general and wide-spread interest in education, and the establishment and maintenance of well-equipped schools and colleges. Parents realize the value of education and are strict and rigorous in seeing that their children avail themselves of these advantages. A college education is now considered almost a necessity for a well-rounded, well-fitted, well-equipped man. Learning has come into its rightful place and men and women have awakened to the necessity of mental exercise if there is to be mental development and growth.

There has been a like awakening when it comes to mental development and growth. The general and wide-spread interest in education, and the establishment and maintenance of well-equipped schools and colleges. Parents realize the value of education and are strict and rigorous in seeing that their children avail themselves of these advantages. A college education is now considered almost a necessity for a well-rounded, well-fitted, well-equipped man. Learning has come into its rightful place and men and women have awakened to the necessity of mental exercise if there is to be mental development and growth.

there not another element we have omitted—that of the spirit? Man, we are told, is composed of body, mind and spirit! When it comes to the development of the spiritual nature of the child, do the parents show the same interest and follow out the same rules?

Does the Sunday School stand as it should beside the day school? How fragmentary and inadequate is the development given to the spiritual nature! The average child is taught a few prayers, sent to Sunday School for a few years, required now and then to attend church services, but compared with his physical and mental development the spiritual side is secondary. Men seem to forget that to do spiritual tasks they must have spiritual strength—and that spiritual strength, like any other strength, comes by exercise.

You remember on one occasion when Christ was upon the mountain a father brought his lunatic son for the disciples to heal. They at once undertook to heal him, but they failed. They failed just as any man, living an ordinary, quiet life without much exertion will fail to lift a heavy weight. That sort of work requires training. They failed just as a man with an untrained mind would fail perfectly at a loss to solve some advanced problem in higher mathematics, having had no training along that line.

The Apostles had not been taking enough spiritual exercise. After Christ had healed the child and the father had gone and the crowd had dispersed, the disciples in consternation asked Christ the question, "Lord, why could not we do this?" And Christ replied, "Ye have not been taking enough spiritual exercise." They had not been praying enough!

A man may be a perfect specimen physically. He may be equally well developed mentally, but when it comes to the spiritual he is decidedly at a loss—he has not developed that part of his nature by exercise.

The less we pray the harder it is to pray. The less we read our Bibles, the less desire we have to read them. The less we go to church, the less desire we have to go. Sad as it seems, men and women have not awakened generally to the necessity of spiritual exercise if there is to be spiritual development.

They take too much for granted. They fancy their clean living, occasional praying, irregular church-going will give them the spiritual training that they need. Suddenly there comes a test case—as there came to those Apostles—they make the effort, but fail. They go to Christ and say, "Why could not we do this?" and Christ says to them, as He said to the Apostles, "This kind of work, be it casting out evil spirits, be it meeting temptation, be it influencing others for good, can only be done by spiritual degradation and crime. It would bring back to us, but by far the greater part of the men whose patriotism took them abroad

PROHIBITION IS HERE TO STAY, SAYS ANDERSON

Anti-Saloon League Head Frankly Discusses Problem of Rumless Republic.

By WILLIAM H. ANDERSON, Superintendent, Anti-Saloon League of New York. (Written for Cosmopolitan News Service.)

NEW YORK, April 29.—Are the people of the United States tired of prohibition, and would they return to pre-Volstead conditions if they had the opportunity? This is a question being asked today by millions of residents of this country.

Neither I nor any other living being can answer that question with the least certainty, for obviously no one, prohibitionist or anti-prohibitionist, is in a position to say how millions of individuals would vote if the question were left to a referendum.

Speaking individually, I am convinced that if a nationwide vote were taken, a great majority would favor prohibition—that is, if a genuine, fair election were held. This, with so many unscrupulous, conscienceless men more than anxious to resort to any underhanded means in order to win, backed as they are by powerful influences, it might be difficult to obtain, but the election were fair and every one given a chance to express his or her honest opinion, I am certain prohibition would win.

Look here: The people of this country, by an immense majority, are law abiding and in favor of the better things in life. I think that will be admitted.

There are plenty of people who say the prohibitionists "put something over" in bringing about prohibition because of the absence of the so-called soldier vote. No doubt there are many who served overseas who would again like to see liquor on sale promiscuously, with all the sorrow, social degradation and crime it would bring back to us, but by far the greater part of the men whose patriotism took them abroad

An open forum discussion of the subject by members of the League and the audience will follow. This will be the closing meeting of the annual election of officers will take place.

Does any fair-minded person believe these men would willingly vote to return to the conditions which existed before prohibition went into effect? I don't.

No prohibitionist would hesitate to submit the question to the voters of this country if satisfied the election would be honestly conducted and everyone given the chance to vote.

There are some people who favor an amendment to the present law which would permit the sale of light wines and beer.

No "Light" Wines.

There are no "light" wines, so called. The wines would contain a percentage of intoxicating matter, and the beer a certain amount of alcohol. As to liquor, that is being brought into this country along the Atlantic coast, chiefly from the Bermudas and islands in the West Indies, by various craft, including former sub-chasers, no doubt the traffic is large, but many of these craft are being seized each day by Government, State and local officials as the newspapers record. Daily arrests of bootleggers are made along the Canadian border. The authorities are doing all they can to stop the

NEW PLAN FOR BUDGET DRIVE TO START SOON

Salvation Army Seeks to Abolish Street Selling This Year.

The Advisory Board of the local Salvation Army organization has decided to present this year in the budget campaign for $37,000 a plan of action radically different from the usual "drive" for charitable purposes.

So far as possible the usual methods of intensive street selling and solicitations will be done away with. There will, of course, be daily features such as "Flower Days," "Doughnut Days," and other characteristic Salvation Army events which are enjoyed by the average Washingtonian quite as much as the army enjoys presenting them.

It is planned, however, to so organize the resources of the city that the budget may be raised without unnecessary annoyance to any who may be asked to contribute, and to this end the co-operation of the public is asked.

Various committees are in the process of formation which will each specialize in certain activities. R. L. McKeever heads a committee which will work among the various civic clubs of the city and chairmen are now being selected to organize the social and country clubs.

It is also planned to have each apartment house canvassed by a resident. This will do away with the usual duplication of requests for this purpose and it is thought that this fact will be appreciated by those who customarily give.

Isaac Gans is chairman of a committee which will work among the business firms of the city. Heads of Washington business houses have already agreed to recognize the value of the Army's work to the community and have been generous in their support. Most of the "down but never out" who are aided by the Salvation Army would become public charges but for this kindly agency. It not only transforms waste material into useful salvage but is doing precisely the same service for wasted lives.

A considerable amount of social activity under the direction of Mrs. R. L. Anderson and Mrs. R. E. Carlson, chairman and secretary respectively, of the Woman's Committee, is planned.

There is no possibility of divulging the nature of these plans as yet, but it may safely be said that several new and novel features will be introduced and that Washington's social and diplomatic sets will be reached by the appeal on a greater scale than ever before. Several matrons high in the Capital's social life have already promised their aid and the number will be considerably increased within a few days.

There is no welfare organization more firmly established in the hearts of the people of every land and every race than the Salvation Army. Its workers circle the globe and there is no "port of missing men" on the farthest outskirts of civilization or in the depths of London, New York or Singapore where the soldiers of this great army are not always present with their triple aid of "Soup, Soap and Salvation."

The local organization will make a campaign for its necessary budget of $37,000 from May 10 to 21, and it is hoped that no difficulty will be found in raising this amount. The sum asked for is an increase of 10 per cent over the amount expended last year, but through better organization and increased facilities the Army will be able to extend its activities over 25 per cent among the needy of Washington during the coming year.

WAR LEAGUE WOMEN TO HONOR UNKNOWN DEAD

When delegates to the Women's Overseas Service League hold their memorial services about the "grave of the unknown soldier" in the Arlington amphitheater tomorrow afternoon they will pay tribute to the more than one hundred and fifty women who died in service overseas.

The service will take place at 3:30 p. m. A prominent singer has been secured and Rev. John Van Schaick will deliver an address in honor of the women who gave their lives in foreign lands during the war. Dr. Van Schaick was Red Cross commissioner to Belgium during the war.

Mrs. Oswald Chew, national president will decorate the grave of the unknown soldier with the emblem of the Women's Overseas Service League. On the medallion is an ideal woman's head, shown in profile against the sea as a background.
